Gulfport Attorney to Address LWV General Meeting Tuesday

A general meeting of the League of Women Voters will be held Tuesday, July 29 at 8 p. m. at the Youth Center.

Highlight of the event will be a talk delivered by James S. Eaton, Gulfport attorney, who has chosen as his subject "Individual Responsibility and the National Election."

With plans for the forthcoming national election at a high peak, it is expected that the audience will exceed that of all former meetings.

The speaker will be introduced by Mrs. Paul Miller, president of the Local League.

Attorney Eaton is well known along the Gulf Coast as one of its outstanding citizens. He was graduated from Gulfport High School in 1929 and attended Vanderbilt University, where he received his B.A. Degree in 1933. At the end of the year 1935 he received his law degree from the University of Mississippi.

Eaton is a Kappa Alpha; Past Chairman of the Red Cross in Gulfport; Chairman of the Ration Board during the last war years; is attorney for the Mississippi Power in Gulfport; the LCRR, and the Hancock Bank, also in Gulfport, and in addition is vice-president of the School Board.

At the meeting new members will be introduced and a panel discussion will follow relative to the activities at the first state convention of the League of Women Voters, which was held in Natchez last May. Leading this discussion will be Mrs. Paul Loup, Mrs. Margaret Kern, Mrs. Charles Eoyer, Mrs. Ernest Samuel and Mrs. Max Kohler, all of whom will give three minute talks on what impressed them most at the convention.

The meeting promises to be a highly interesting one and each member is requested to bring at least one guest along to enjoy the program. Men in the family are welcome also, and there are many who will not want to miss the Attorney's views.

The public is reminded that the League of Women Voters is decidedly a non-partisan organization, never attempting to influence an individual's vote; rather, trying to make available facts toward installing in every eligible citizen the necessity of voting.

Every member is urged to present at this informative meeting.

PHONE COSTS TO RISE TO ABSORB PAY HIKE

The Wage Stabilization Board today approved a joint Company-Union petition for wage increases for 50,000 Southern Bell employees in the South, including more than 3500 in Mississippi. These increased wages are retroactive to June 8.

"There is no margin in Southern Bell's Mississippi income to absorb additional costs," J. M. Phillips, Acting Mississippi Manager said. "When telephone rates in Mississippi were established in October, 1951, the amount of additional revenue made effective at the time provided the very minimum level of earning. The new wage level just approved will reduce our already inadequate earnings to an even lower level."

"Sufficient income and earnings are essential to dependable and expanding service in Mississippi. Now that the wage board has acted we have no alternative, in the interest of good telephone service, except to recover the added wage expense by some adjustments in our charges."

Costs More Now!

Most of the things we eat, wear, or use cost much more today than they did in 1945. . . And in a majority of cases, it's price alone that has changed; the items being no bigger or better.

Telephone service is an exception—Over all telephone rates here in Mississippi have advanced more than 10 per cent in general. A great deal less than our costs of providing the service. At the same time, telephone service has been greatly expanded and improved. Today the telephone is a fact of life in Mississippi. It's a fact of life in every home, every business, every office, every school, every church, every hospital, every hospital.

Businessmen and subscribers agree that telephone rates are reasonable and that telephone service is excellent.

THE ALLEN CO. GOVERNMENT

BY MARION CARTWRIGHT

No. 2 in a series of articles on Municipal Government

The weak-mayor form of municipal government under the administrative plan remained in use until after the administrative reorganization of 1922, when the administration and government were joined.

It was such administrative weakness of the system that finally led to the placing of more authority and responsibility in the mayor's hands than in the municipal government.

The City of Boston in 1822 became the first city to strengthen the position of the mayor in American cities. Other municipalities followed. Authority was concentrated and not spread over many elected officials and the governmental organization was simplified.

Concerning this type of aldermanic government, the University of Mississippi in its "Forms of Municipal Government in Mississippi" had this to say:

"The strong-mayor form of municipal government rests upon two ideals:

First, the council or board of aldermen is given charge of one function, namely, the legislative or policy making function.

Second, authority and responsibility for administration are vested in the mayor. A strong-mayor government therefore possesses the following characteristics:

1. A mayor who is popularly elected

2. A council at large or by wards or by a combination of the two methods.

3. A strong veto power vested in the mayor.

4. Control of administration in the mayor who has broad powers of appointment and removal, and who is charged with preparing the municipal budget and presenting it to the council for action by the latter."

Continuing their study of this type of government, the University of Mississippi had this to add:

"Several weaknesses of the form (strong-mayor, aldermanic form) require attention. These include:

1. The possibility of a conflict and a deadlock between the mayor and the council.

2. The requirement that the mayor be both an administrator and a politician.

3. The possibility that the mayor may abuse his power.

"The strong-mayor form is conceded generally to be an improvement upon the weak-mayor form of government.

It has been especially popular in the larger cities. Although results always vary according to the abilities of the person holding office, administration under either form of mayor-council government (the aldermanic form) improves with increased executive powers which are accompanied by increased responsibility to the inhabitants of the municipality for the conduct of the city's affairs."

had two brothers married the same day in their mother's house, however, they apparently were members of the same, too, accompanied with a few friends. They are, indeed, good for us, though. The other day, the two brothers had dinner at a restaurant in the city.

That day, "A'Chal" was discussing the fact that no Scottish housewife knows how to make a proper meal. (Boy!

What there were some recommendations to that one for the next night!) Anyway the article goes as follows: "Scots women are superb cooks; bakers. They make delicious broth. Their stovies and dumplings are delight."

"But the only dish they fall down on is summer salad. They don't get into the most vital ingredient—imagination. To nine women out of ten salad is lettuce, tomato, and hard-boiled egg. (Right in Scotland, too!) For variety, they may serve a slice of beetroot on a spoonful of thinned veg-

(Stumped again.) Now, to make a successful salad, you've got to enhance the flavor of the vegetables—then fashion them into such a beautiful picture you feel almost ashamed to spoil it with a fork and knife. (A knife, too!)

To begin with, make your own salad cream: Add one part vinegar to three parts of olive oil. Stir in salt, pepper, mustard, chopped onions, parley—whatever you fancy for flavoring.

You can even add a few grains of sugar to counteract the acid vinegar.

Or use lemon juice instead of vinegar.

That's the genuine French dressing.

It blends with every vegetable—French beans, green peas, cucumber, tomato, lettuce, potatoes. Pour the dressing over the vegetables the instant before serving. Or put the cream in a large bowl and toss the vegetables in.

"And I promise you that men who serve up their noses and say 'Rabbit food' at salad will lap up every scrap

if it's served with the right dressing."

"Next, there is no need to make lettures the basis of every salad. I find cabbage heart, watercress, or celery is often better. Then you'll be surprised at the result if you mix a nice shredded apple with the vegetables in the salad. Or even mix tinned pineapple with lettuce, beetroot, celery, vinegar and oil. Believe me, that is a luscious salad!"

"In our climate salad is not robust enough a dish of its own. We need a filler of some sort to make a substantial meal of it. The usual fillers are chips, boiled potatoes, potato crisps, cold meat, etc. Why not macaroni, rice, or fish? They blend well together."
